The enclosed program diskette has had an enhanced keyboard input routine implemented that increases the rate at which one can enter data into the program. This faster keyboard input changes some of the editing functions, however.

The manual states that to move the cursor backwards requires using the SHIFT and BACK ARROW keys located at the bottom right corner of the keyboard. Now, to move the cursor backwards, one can use the key marked DEL at the upper right corner. Each time this key is pressed, the cursor will delete one character to the left.

Also, one may now simply press return to accept default prompts in areas such as dates and check numbers, instead of having to run the cursor over the prompt, or re-typing the information.
